

SANJITA Swargiyary

ASSAM

Sanjita Swargiyary and her husband Ganesh Boro reside in Howly, Barpeta district, of Assam with their two sons. Their only source of income was the money Ganesh earned as a tractor driver and as a farmer. Previously, the family lived in a hut with thatched roof which was very uncomfortable and unhygienic, especially during the monsoons.

Sanjita dreamt of building a pucca house which is comfortable and spacious with separate rooms for their children to study. However, their weak financial position and the consequent fear of loans discouraged her. It was then she came to know about PMAY(U) Scheme and she soon, acted upon it. Apart from the government fund, they put in all their savings in the construction of their house.

“Nothing can be compared to owning a pucca house. I am a proud owner of a beautiful house, I have a better kitchen to cook and my sons have separate rooms for themselves, it gives the right environment to focus on their education,” Sanjita said.
