

JAYSHREEBEN Sukarbhai Halpati

DAMAN AND DIU

Jayshreeben Sukarbhai Halpati and Sukarbhai Somiyabhai Halpati reside in Andhia Sheri, Nani, Daman. While Jayshreeben works as a domestic help, her husband works in a private plastic company. Apart from their third daughter (two of them are married) Jayshreeben's, three brothers-in-law also live with them in the two room kutcha house

Given the family size and small living space, it was very difficult for them to live in the house. There was no kitchen or toilet in the house. With the financial condition of the family, it was practically impossible for them to even think of building a pucca house.

PMAY (U) Scheme made it possible for her to achieve the dream of her own house. Once the local councillor told them about PMAY(U) the couple and the three brothers enrolled in the scheme. They received financial assistance from the Government, and with the additional saving they were able to build a pucca house. The house has two floors in which each of the brother got a two-room set registered on their name.

Jayashreeben is a happy mother today. She now wishes to get her third daughter married from the new house. She proudly mentions that this time she is getting good alliances for her daughter as they now live in a pucca house. All four families live in the same building, they not only share their happiness, they also share their food.

This house has helped her ensure safety, security and privacy of her daughter. "I am thankful to the Government of India for such a people friendly scheme that protects the interest of the poor" she says.
