

MANJEET Kour

JAMMU AND KASHMIR

Manjeet Kour lived in a one-room set with her husband Dilawar Singh and four children. A carpenter by profession, Dilawar has the responsibility of the entire family. The six family members lived in a dilapidated room in an unhygienic condition. They suffered due to waterlogging issues, which also affected the studies of the children.

“My husband is the sole bread-earner in the family. Since we live in a small border town area of Jammu & Kashmir, he is not able to earn more. We often felt disheartened as we were not able to provide a better life to our children. Further, we also kept worrying about the wedding of our four daughters,” says Manjeet Kour.

In such a condition, owning a pucca house was a distant dream for the family. However, the transformation happened when Manjeet Kour asked Dilawar Singh to apply for assistance under PMAY(U) Scheme.

With the financial grant received under the Scheme, the couple managed to construct their house with all basic amenities. The family now is living happily in their dream house, which has given them a sense of safety and security.

The family has expressed their heartfelt gratitude to the Government of India for fulfilling their dream of a pucca house. The home has given Manjeet Kour and Dilawar Singh a confidence to get their daughters married to a decent family.

“I’m now leading a stress-free life with a better lifestyle,” Manjeet Kour concludes.
