

PARAMJIT Kaur

PUNJAB

Paramjit Kaur lived in a small kutchha house with her husband Ranjeet Singh, 58, and their children – three sons and one daughter – in Punjab's Nawanshahr. Ranjeet is a labour and his income barely helped meet the everyday needs of the family. PMAY (U) showed the couple a ray of hope to own their pucca house.

“Getting a house of my own in my 50s has changed the way I perceive life now. My wife and children feel much more secured and happy,” he says.

Ranjeet adds that he doesn't want his children to end up as labourers in life. “I want them to study, get a good job and live a better life,” he said. A pucca house indeed brings about a new meaning in people's lives and helps them in their upwards and onwards journey.
